

Abstract:

A locking element for holding together threaded parts such as screws and nuts against undesired loosening, consisting of at least two annular lock washers (1, 2) lying on each other and having center holes (14), wherein the inner surfaces lying on each other have teeth (7) and teeth (5) are provided on the outer faces, characterized in that at least one center hole (14) has a rounding (6) or a groove (24) on the inner face provided with teeth.